Allergy Awareness for Those Working in Adult Social Care Level 2

Course Overview

This course has been designed to provide essential knowledge and skills to individuals working in adult social care who need to manage and support individuals with allergies.

Allergies can be life-threatening and affect individuals in a variety of ways, from food allergies to environmental allergens. Therefore, it is crucial for those working in adult social care settings to have a clear understanding of allergies, how to recognize reactions, and how to provide appropriate first aid.

This course covers a range of topics, including the different types of allergens, food allergies and intolerances, managing allergic reactions, reducing the risk of allergic reactions, and administering first aid. The course is ideal for individuals looking to upskill or employers seeking allergy awareness training for their staff.

Upon completion of this course, learners will have gained the knowledge and skills required to provide effective support to individuals with allergies, reduce the risk of reactions, and respond appropriately in the event of an allergic reaction.

What is the cost?

As a result of government funding, this qualification is currently offered at no cost. However, please note that the number of funded places can be limited. To ensure you secure your spot, we recommend booking early.

How do learners benefit?

This course provides learners with comprehensive knowledge and skills to manage and support individuals with allergies.

By completing the course, learners demonstrate their commitment to professional development and gain confidence in dealing with challenging situations.

They will also understand how to reduce the risk of allergic reactions and respond appropriately in the event of an allergic reaction, enhancing safety for both staff and individuals in their care.

Additionally, this course helps employers ensure staff comply with relevant legislation and regulations.
